El Pinar de Campoverde is an inland village set on a wooded hillside at the foot of the Sierra de Escalona mountains, 10 kms inland from Pilar de la Horadada with good views to the Mediterranean Sea. The town is characterised by an elevated position that boasts stunning views over vast orange groves and pine forests to the north and west but also across the coastal plains to the Mediterranean and Mar Menor Seas to the southeast. The elevation provides a welcome sea breeze that cools the village throughout the hotter summer month. The nearest main town is Pilar de La Horadada (7.3 km), and the nearest city is the coastal metropolitan area of Torrevieja (26 km) to the northeast. There is easy access to both the N-332 coast road and the AP-7 motorway.
