Cabo Roig is a residential urbanisation located on the eastern coastline of the Mediterranean Sea, in the southern most quarter of the Alicante province, and 8.8km's south of the coastal city of Torrevieja. The area is popular during the height of the summer season as a favoured holiday destination for tourists, attracted by the white sandy beaches and the abundance of quality leisure facilities. Cabo Roig boasts two magnificent white sandy beaches, each awarded Blue Flag accreditation for their high standards of maintenance and safe, clean Mediterranean waters. Cabo Roig's main beach, Playa de La Cala Capitán, is a large cove shaped beach 86m deep and measuring 157m at the waters edge. Playa de La Caleta beach can be found further south - a strip of white sand 287m long and 43m deep. Both beaches are comprised of fine sand, with beach bars and lifeguard services provided during high season. Cala Capitán offers a wooden walkway that accommodates the needs of families with children and wheelchair users. A coastal path runs around the coastline of the community, and it's possible to walk or cycle north through Cabo Roig from Campoamor and on to La Zenia.
